

Glastonbury Goddess Temple – Photo Permissions

We're delighted to have people send us their photos for inclusion on our website and would ask that you use this document to ensure that everyone shown has given their permission.

The world is changing and people who were once happy to be portrayed on our site may need to rethink this. We have already been asked to remove some images, so feel it only right to be very strict in this policy, and for the future have agreed the following:

First, we need the photographer's permission in writing – if we use a lot of photos from that person one email could cover them all if future permission is granted at the same time, otherwise please give the filename of the photograph(s) covered within the email. The photographer may also specify the purpose(s) for which the photo may be used and for how long.

If particular text or a link to the photographer's own website is required, please include that in the above email.

Where individuals are shown in a photograph sent to us for inclusion on our website, please ask each person to email us separately (please don't forward the emails or we may be unable to rely on them), giving that permission and noting any restrictions they may wish to place. We may not, however, be able to use a photo that is restricted.

In the case of children or anyone under 18 years of age, we will need the permission to come from the young person's parent or guardian.

It would be helpful if a copy of the image(s) could be included, clearly showing who is who!

Please ensure that all permission emails are sent directly to
